MANY FINE COWS SHOWN

Many Different Breeds Are Entered in the Cattle
Showing(By Sidney W. Hooper, N. D. A. C.)
Farmers of the Missouri Slope region comprising the 13 counties southwest of the Missouri river have been gambling on one crop—wheat—farming for years.

That is why the outstanding feature of the Missouri Slope fair which has just closed at Mandan was the interest shown in the exhibit of dairy cattle. The farmers of the western section of North Dakota have decided to quit gambling on wheat at least the majority of them have and they will hereafter place their money on the Black and White. That is they will place their money on the Holstein dairy cow if they can raise the money to place.

New Salem the pioneer dairy district of the Missouri Slope region has made a distinct success of the dairy business. Farmers of the New Salem Holstein Breeding Circuit this year are able to buy new automobiles despite the fact that their fodder crop was unusually poor. Less than three years ago the Flasler Holstein Breeding circuit was established and it was between these two groups of farmers, the first 30 miles west of Mandan the other an equal distance south, that competition was most keen in the live stock dairy department of the Missouri Slope fair.

In the Holstein class,

New Salem was represented by six herds, Flasler by five and there were three individual entries. The New Salem pioneers took the majority of the placings. The breeders having animals at the Missouri Slope fair at Mandan were Dick Wilkins, Henry Kroeger, Frank Gaebe, Henry Schwarting, Ed Tellman and Fred Michaels of New Salem; Sawtell & Stewell, L. A. Havens, Kottnor Brothers, A. G. Weeks, and Peter Brandenburg of Flasler; Mrs. Jennie Moran of Bismarck, C. G. Fisher, of Jamestown, the state hospital for the insane of Jamestown, and the State Training School of Mandan.

Competition in the shorthorn class was exceptionally keen and some fine herds were shown by the eleven exhibitors. The outstanding animal of the whole show was Harry Stamp a four-year-old bull owned by Emil Kohlschein & Sons of Pingree N. D. This bull weighs 2300 pounds and was purchased from B. W. Ator of Grandin N. D. at the time of the latter-state fair at Fargo.

Exhibitors of shorthorns include: R. S. Veedor Mandan, Emil Kohlschein & Sons, Pingree N. D., Otto Feland, Almon Norman, Loos, Buchanan, Charles Rambow, Fort Rice Shipper & Lambert, Bismarck, Zachmeier Brothers, Mandan, H. F. Purfeister, New Salem, W. A. Beaumont, Buchanan, Hammer Brothers, Cooperton and Erickson Brothers, Williston.

DIVERS AND DERRICKS FISH UP AUTOS

RAISING AN AUTO FROM THE GHOST POND AND (INSEI) DIVERS WHO ARE DOING THE WORK

By Roy Gibbons

Summit Hill Sept 1—Night and day divers continue to fish in the ghost pond here for automobiles.

Under its 80 feet of brackish water 100 stolen cars valued at $25,000 lie buried.

With the aid of giant derricks the divers are working to bring the machines to the surface.

A score of police representatives from many cities and several national insurance inspectors are supervising the rescue.

It is their belief that the ghost pond—n reality an abandoned quarry—has been used as a cache by auto thieves who dispose of cars to collect the insurance.

The divers discoveries have dispelled a superstitious legend that the quarry was haunted.

For two years in the dead of night they have become accustomed to hearing automobiles racing down the one way road leading to the quarry.

And the cars never came back.

"Ghosts," the neighbors said.

Then one night the last car went by.

Those who drove it over the precipitous cliff were not aware that the pond was filled to overflowing—with water 100 feet deep.

It went in but so many others were resting underneath that next morning it stood out of the water with the chassis resting on a bed of iron or steel.

Then the divers got to work.

See Mandan Fair in The Three Days

The attendance for the three days is not quite as large as last year but outsiders tell us we have a fair better than that at Grand Forks and Fargo in many exhibits, said Secretary John Rovig of the Missouri Slope Fair Association today.

The fair which ended yesterday was attended by about 12,000 persons during the daytime. The attendance yesterday was 2,500. Tuesday was the biggest day in the fair's history but the attendance on the other two days slumped.

The best race—the three days was the free for all yesterday afternoon. Cinefield was first, White Rose second, Little Russell third and Blue Finch fourth. Best time was 21 1/4. Little Russell is owned by Mrs. H. M. Bryan of Bismarck.

In the consolation race for horses which had not finished in the money, Comet W. L. was first, Nabob second, Eva Welcome third and Direct Drift fourth. The last two named horses are owned by Justice Casselman of Bismarck who drove Direct Drift.

R. B. Olson of Almont won the relay race which extended over the three days with Spotted Elks of Ft. Yates second.

There was an automobile race which had not been on the program between a Hudson and a Ford Tex-Harmons driving the Hudson to a win.

One of the feature exhibits of the fair was that of the Leth Motor Sales company of Bismarck. The Bismarck Overland 4 automobile drew big attention.

J. J. O'Ferther's state dairy committee pair the fair a compliment when he said the dairy exhibit was better than that at either the Fargo or Grand Forks fairs.

The emergency commission has been requested to print a $100 from funds to be used for the expense of printing a publicity pamphlet before the opening of the fair.

The request was formally made by Secretary of State Thomas Hall with Governor Flasler and Commissioner of Agriculture and Natural Resources J. N. Hagan constituting the commission.

In his letter Mr. Hall told the commissioners that the pamphlet, to be printed on the opening day of the fair, would be a statement of the public interest in mandating

Two Names Voted on by Administration Board

Dr. John Coulter, dean of agriculture of the Agricultural College of West Virginia, is to be the new president of the North Dakota State Agricultural College. He was selected at session of the state board of administration about 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

Dr. Coulter will assume his position about the middle of September. It is expected by the board. His salary is $7,000 a year, the same as that previously paid.

Two Voted On.

Two names were voted on for the place. Dr. Coulter and Dr. H. H. McPherson of the Agricultural College of Oregon. The vote was 4 to 1 in favor of Dr. Coulter and Geo. Totten, Sr. voting for McPherson.

The latter had been recommended by the state farm bureau. It then was made unanimous.

Dr. Coulter is now at East Grand Forks visiting a brother. He was born there graduated from the University of North Dakota in 1904 took his A. B. degree in 1905 and took his P. H. D. in 1908 at the University of Wisconsin. He studied and instructed in the agricultural department of the University of Minnesota and Ames College. With States Attorney Unearths Plant Near Baldwin

Sheriff Rollin Welch of St. Paul, attorney F. E. McColl, attorney for the moonshine still on a farm near Baldwin, was today.

The officers said they found it in the side of a burrow on the property of the Johnson brothers, and that were it not for a partition in the better part was full of mush.

No charges have as yet been brought against the two men, the state attorney said, but the manufacturing liquor will be impounded.

QUEBEC TAMES INTEMPERATE

Province Allows the Thirsty
"Enough, But Not Too Much!"

By Edward Thierry
Montreal, Sept. 1.—Tasty Americans are finding this the most expensive and least expensive oasis.

The saloon evil has been blotted out in the province of Quebec. You can buy beer and wines in cafés, but no "hard liquor." You can buy liquor, but you must buy it from the government.

Hugh churchmen have endorsed the new law, now four months old. They call it a temperance measure. The government calls it "a law of temperance and liberty."

I spent a week in Montreal and

HOW STRONG ARE YOU?

IGNATIUS NEUBAUER

By Newspaper Enterprise.

Boston, Sept. 1.—How strong are you?

Can you lift a 217-pound weight over your head with one hand? Can you lift 2,000 pounds on your back? Can you hold a team of horses on your chest?

Ignatius Neubauer, ex-gob and Harvard student, can.

In the navy they called him "the strong man." At Harvard he is known as "Tarzan."

When Neubauer trotted into Hemingway's gymnasium with Instructor Dan Kelley's class he lifted everything in sight. The class was demoralized for the day.

His Exercise.

He hoisted a 217-pound weight above his head with one hand. He climbed under a table and lifted 2,000 pounds on his back.

His greatest feat is to hold a team of horses on his chest.

He does this by means of a specially constructed platform which he adjusts on his knees and shoulders. He rests on his hands and feet while the horses are driven on.

Neubauer isn't muscle-bound. His muscles don't even bulge until he starts doing stunts. He weighs 180 pounds.

Measurements.

His measurements are: Neck—16 1/2 inches. Chest—45 inches. Waist—32 inches. Thigh—24 1/2 inches. Calf—16 3/4 inches. Ankle—9 3/4 inches. Biceps—16 1/4 inches. Forearm—13 inches. Neubauer is 25. His height is 5 feet 6 inches.

Lives Natural.

He doesn't sacrifice pleasure in order to keep his strength.

"I eat what I like best, but not in excess," says Neubauer.

"I drink coffee. Occasionally I smoke."

"Live natural. That's the secret of being strong."

The Harvard "Tarzan" is superintendent of physical education in the public schools at Saranac Lake, N. Y., where Christy Mathewson is trying to regain his health.

His great strength doesn't make him slow. He can hoist a 200-pound weight over his head eight times in 30 seconds.

Some speed! Some strength and the government begins to import liquor itself, prices will be lower.

Re-sale of beers, ales and wines are permitted and the fees bring the province a revenue of $1,000,000 a year, in addition to the 25 per cent profit on liquor sales in government stores.

Administration of the law is in the hands of a commission, which has done more to keep the Cleveland Indians in first place and the Yankees in second than any other outfit in the league.

The Sox have spanked the Yanks 12 times and lost only eight games to them.

Cleveland tripped the Sox 12 times and lost only four games to them.

Washington is the only outfit to win its series with both Cleveland and New York.

Baseball's middle name is inconsistency.

The Yankees have the greater playing strength but the Indians have it on them all for being a game ball club.

Rare Birds

Change of scenery sometimes helps ball players.

There are a couple of instances on the New York teams which worked the other way.

The Giants annexed Emil Meusel from the Phillies where he had been hammering out home runs, triples, doubles and bungles with regularity.

He played in a New York uniform about a month before he broke out with a four-base tick.

The Yankees pulled in Outfielder Miller from the minors to help them slaughter American League pitchers.

He has had one slump of being at bat over 20 times without ever belting out a safety.

Meusel and Miller are rare birds.

Long-Len

If France develops a few more champions and then sends them to America, most everyone will learn a smattering of the French language.

Pronunciation of Mlle. Suzanne Lenglen's name is equally as erratic as was the enunciation of Carpenter.

By the time Americans had become accustomed to calling Georges Car-Pon-Shay he was knocked out in the fourth round.

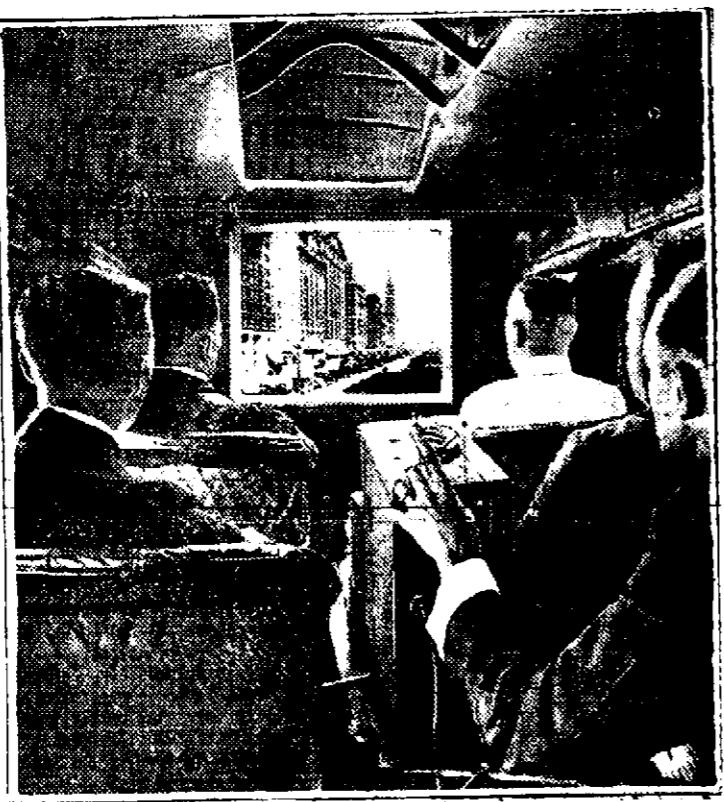

Suzanne pronounces her name Long-Len.

But, like Carpenter, she will be called most everything else.

In good everyday English, Suzanne's name should be Lenglen, just like George's family name is Karp-En-Ter.

Churches have set Oct. 9 as "Fire Prevention Sunday." We thought every Sunday was.

IT'S A WONDERFUL AGE!

Many of us remember when there were no movies and no airplanes. Now the two are combined, as shown here aboard the 11-passenger hydroplane, "Santa Maria," at the Chicago Pageant of Progress. Views of Chicago were presented to the passengers while the plane was traveling 80 miles an hour.

RATOLOGIST SAYS RATS MAY CONQUER MAN

Boston, Mass., Sept. 1.—It costs the people of the United States $1,000,000 a day to feed the country's population of rats.

Rats cause an annual property damage in this country of $20,000,000. It requires the constant labor of 200,000 men to produce the materials destroyed by rats.

The authority for the foregoing is Mrs. Albert T. Leatherbee, ratologist of the Women's Municipal League of Boston, and recognized as an authority on rats.

Mrs. Leatherbee is the sworn enemy of all rats. She looks upon rodents as one of the greatest, if not the greatest, menace to life, health and property in the country. And she paigns for their extermination in many American cities.

Mrs. Leatherbee intimates that rats are more intelligent than men in some respects. If this were not so, she says, rats would not be permitted to propagate. For, she says, it is through man's negligence that rats exist.

"Just as long as human beings continue to rear rats with apathy, and furnish them with dormices and food," she says, "they will increase and multiply until finally they will become equal rivals with man for existence and may possibly conquer him."

Mrs. Leatherbee says that female rats breed at the age of three months and that they have six to ten litters a year with from eight to eighteen in a litter.

But it is not the property-destroying tendencies of the rat which most alarms Mrs. Leatherbee.

It is this: rats immigrating to this country aboard ships coming from infected ports, carry in their fur the parasites of bubonic plague. This, says Mrs. Leatherbee, constitutes a menace which hangs over the head of every resident of the United States.

These rats, Mrs. Leatherbee maintains, are pouring into every American seaport. And, she says, greater efforts should be made to kill them before they set foot ashore.

Washington conference bears fruit for any thought of war.

In President Harding and Secretary of State Hughes I saw two men of distinction, who, of all the eminent men with whom I have discussed this great conference, seemed to my humble thinking most fitted to preside over such a council.

"Both are men who have the peace of the world at heart, to whom the inevitable difficulties of the discussion no less than the gravity of the issue are perfectly clear."

"If, as I said, the conference should fail, the consequences will be utterly disastrous to the whole world; but I am strong in my belief that it will not fail, that it will rise from its deliberations with a tremendous effort to its credit on behalf of civilization."

While nightmare is said to be capable of causing death to a physically weak adult, this has never been known to happen to a child; yet children are more subject to nightmares than adults.

scotch this dire peril, and I am absolutely persuaded that if every delegate there will keep before his eyes this single supreme object, and, in so doing, faithfully represent the opinion of his country—and, what is equally important, if we, the shareholders in this tremendous business of renewing the sanity of the world, will do the utmost in our power to prevent the intrusion of any other considerations at the Washington conference—the solid common sense which is latent in every civilized nation will see to it that the greatest council the world has ever known will be carried on in an atmosphere of sincerity and good faith.

Honesty Needed.

"Unless that atmosphere can be created and made to endure, unless each and every nation honestly shows that it is represented at Washington for the single purpose for which the conference is called, the genuine limitation of armaments, and that no thought of tactical gains of any sort is being entertained, the conference will fail, and the greatest opportunity in history for securing permanent and universal peace and prosperity will have been thrown away."

"We must all be morally disarmed before we begin to discuss the limitation of arms. We must meet at that table as friends indissolubly bound together by one great purpose. But we must realize at the outset that it is the first intention to the supremely issue of the conference that our minds should be open and that we should not, by any premature action prejudice the situation which may arise after the labors of the conference are concluded."

"DOWN ON THE FARM"

(By Florence Borner.)

If you're tired of scratchin' gravel, while th' boss gets all th' dough, If yer tired of city pickin', an' th' money comin' slow, If yer want to get off somewhere, fr' away fr'm care an' harm, Hike right out into th' country, buy yerself a little farm.

Get a horse, an' cow, an' chickens, an' a hive or two of bees, Set th' latter in th' orchard, underneath th' apple trees; Plant a garden, an' a big one, yer will eat a whole lot more, Than yer did down in th' city cramp'd up in a two by four.

Pick strawberries, great big fellers, not th' kin' down at th' shop, With th' small ones on th' bottom, an' th' big ones on th' top; Put 'em in a bowl or saucer, fill 'em up with richest cream, With a little mite of sugar, you've a dish fit fr' a queen.

Here there is no landlord comin', tellin' yer to move or pay, Uncle he's comin' of yer, leavin' fifteen dollars evry day; Here is health an' sweet contentment, such as yer have never known, Down open in th' farm is waitin' fr' yer such a home sweet home.

Don't yer like to go a fishin' 'neath a lazy summer sky, Watch off Mr. Trout debatin' whether he shall take th' fly? Then he makes a grab an' gets it—gets it, an' it gets him, too, An' then, hurried over yonder, like th' speckled beauties do.

There is room out in th' country, room fr' folks to stretch and grow! An' a man can get them for a good price, An' you can get some important in your dandy little home, With its orchard, a cottage, when you know it's all your own.

VITUPERATION NO DEFENSE

Impugning motives and dealing in fiction are the weapons used by the Grand Forks Herald in seeking to discount the attitude taken by The Tribune toward a continuation of the state owned enterprises. There has been practically no logical defense of the I. V. A. program which calls for a bond issue to do just what Townley and his followers seek—the continuation of the state industries. It is beside the issue for The Herald to rattle the bones of the political bugaboos—always the refuge of the inconsistent politician who stands upon a "we want the jobs and patronage" platform.

The Tribune is at least consistent. It is opposed to the whole scheme of state owned industries whether dominated by the Nonpartisan League regime or the I. V. A. Because it is fearless enough to stand upon that issue, The Herald instead of stating its own position on state socialism berates The Tribune and revives the perennial chestnut of "McKenzieism."

What is biting into Jerry's political hide are federal patronage and the senatorial contest. Are these issues in the recall election? Is it the aim and object of the I. V. A. to seek victory for the purpose of securing recognition at Washington in the distribution of patronage? If so, why does not Jerry frankly tell his readers that he wants to be "collar and elbow" at the pie counter, even though he has to swallow state socialism to get there.

The whole trend of the Grand Forks Herald editorial republished in The Tribune Wednesday of this week, shows that its vision is prescribed by an aspiration to dictate the next United States senator and to participate in federal patronage.

No such motives obtain in The Tribune policy. It has no ambition to be a Warwick and asks no federal patronage. But it has a deep and abiding hope of the final redemption of the state from socialistic fallacies. The cure for state socialism is not as the I. V. A. contend, more socialism, but an honest and fearless stand for a restoration of representative government—a complete abandonment of socialistic and class fallacies.

Until the anti-league organization can go before the people on a platform of complete restoration of representative government there is no hope for stable conditions. Half way measures and cowardly expedients never effected a real cure.

The only hope lies in reviving the Republican party of this state and in purging its ranks of democrats, socialists and the other political varieties whose fusion has produced the political monstrosities in the I. V. A. program.

DOWN WITH HIS SHIP

One of the finest traditions of the sea is that the captain is the last to leave a sinking ship. He sticks to his bridge until all others are safe, though it means his certain death.

This fine tradition was lived up to by Commander Maxfield of the American crew on the dirigible ZR-2.

Commander Wann, British navigator, who miraculously escaped when the ZR-2 exploded and fell, tells the thrilling story of Maxfield's heroism in an exclusive interview obtained by the Newspaper Enterprise Association.

"Commander Maxfield and his comrades died which have gross returns of between $1,000,000 as martyrs to duty and thought for others," says Commander Wann.

"Had they thought only of their personal safety, have existed during the last year, the man who there was time to snatch parachutes and jump.

"But in the few seconds given to them, they make money. The man who has been farming remembered that abandoning the ship would result in greater disaster in the densely packed streets below.

"So they stuck to their posts, to steer their ship to a safer crashing place. By their success, they saved others at the expense of their own lives.

"When the ship swayed and a great sheet of flame shot out," says Commander Wann, "I exchanged looks with Maxfield and saw from his grim-set face that he realized the worst.

"Never have I seen the face of a braver man.

"It was an inspiration to all of us, a splendid reminder that our first thought must be to clear the crowded town and find a grave in the river.

"Then came tense, anxious moments in which we wondered if we could do it. A look of relief came over the eyes of brave Maxfield. Then a flash, times as these.—Fargo Forum.

But he refused and passed the comrade his parachute—COMMANDING, AS HIS SUPERIOR OFFICER, THAT THE COMRADE USE IT TO SAVE HIS LIFE

Maxfield is gone, but he will live on in the fine traditions of aviation.

Accidents, such as the ZR-2 disaster, retard the development of aviation by man.

But that man ultimately will obtain complete mastery of the air is made certain by the heroic caliber of the air navigators.

To lose a man like Maxfield is a greater disaster to aviation than the loss of a flying ship. The unfortunate phase is that a ship cannot be lost, except under fortuitous circumstances, without loss of human life.

Thus those who order men into the air should learn from the example of Maxfield to make their first regard the safety of others!

HELUM

The disaster of the ZR-2 makes this positive: That in any later dirigible built by the United States, helium gas, which is non-inflammable and non-explosive, will be used instead of hydrogen gas.

Had helium gas filled the ZR-2, it is held, the disaster could not have occurred. Despite any structural weakness, a landing without loss of life very probably could have been made.

The United States has inexhaustible sources for the development of helium gas in Texas.

The navy intends to go ahead with the construction of a sister ship, the ZR-1, at Lakehurst, N. J., taking advantage of every lesson learned in the construction, navigation, and tragedy in the career of the ZR-2. When the ZR-1 rises into the skies, the lifting power will be helium.

DIRIGIBLES

Since the disaster to the ZR-2 thousands of Americans have asked:

"What is the purpose of these great rigid dirigibles?"

They are intended for long distance scouting. Lighter-than-air ships have shown a flying radius of 6500 miles.

This means that a dirigible leaving our Pacific coast could scout Japan and return—provided it was not dropped by enemy gun-fire from naval vessels or by bullets or shells from faster heavier-than-air flying machines.

There is real doubt, however, as to the value of these big rigid dirigibles because they are so vulnerable not only to enemy attacks but to the elements themselves.

This vulnerability should cause the navy department to stop and ask: "Will we be giving the taxpayers value received in hazarding another two million on the ZR-1?"

EDITORIAL REVIEW

Comments reproduced in this column may or may not express the opinion of The Tribune. They are presented here in order that our readers may have both sides of important issues which are being discussed in the press of the day.

THE BEST MORTGAGE LIFTER

Any North Dakota farmer who had an assured income of $800 a year whatever happened to his grain crops would doubtless consider himself extremely fortunate, and wouldn't do so much worrying about hot winds and grasshoppers.

Yet there are several counties in Minnesota where that is the average income per farm from the production of creamery butter alone.

Stearns county, for example, had a gross income from creamery butter alone of $3,652,000 in 1920. There are 4,598 farms in Stearns county, so the average income for all the farms in the county from creamery butter alone would be about $800. If you eliminate the farmers who do little or nothing with cream, the average would probably be close to $1,000.

Minnesota has no less than seven counties which have gross returns of more than $2,000,000 annually from creamery butter. These counties are Stearns, Ottertail, Wright, McLeod, Carver, Steele and Freeborn. Probably the best showing is in Steele county, where 1,860 farmers average more than $1,000 apiece each year from cream checks.

There are no less than 20 more counties which have gross returns of between $1,000,000 and $2,000,000 from cream checks.

Under the trying conditions for farmers which have existed during the last year, the man who has diversified has been about the only one to make money. The man who has been farming remembered that abandoning the ship would result in greater disaster in the densely packed streets below.

As a dairying country, Minnesota is no better than many parts of North Dakota, but the Minnesota farmers have built up the dairying industry through co-operative creameries until in 1919 they produced one-quarter of all the creamery butter made in the United States. Nor are they satisfied with this truly remarkable showing.

They are now planning a federation of creameries and the adoption of a Minnesota state brand which will standardize all the creamery butter produced in the state. That will mean that Minnesota creamery butter will be known throughout this country and even in Europe as representing a certain standard of excellence.

It is an example that might well be followed as a crash and a splash as the giant airship settled in North Dakota. A regular and assured income of $800 to $1,000 certainly would be a pleasant times as these.—Fargo Forum.

THE BISMARCK TRIBUNE

SIMON LEGREE

RECALL CAULDRON

By The Pot Boiler.

Now comes the Mandan Pioneer and votes The Tribune in the Nonpartisan league column. Is this wish father to the thought? Mr. Tostevin, its editor, has one eye glued on the Mandan postoffice and the other on state patronage. He puts The Tribune on the fence while he straddles the I. V. A. program which is a pot pourri of socialism like unto which no man has seen until this day.

We quote the following sophomoric deduction from the Mandan Pioneer: "So far as party regularity is concerned, the Pioneer takes no second place in loyalty to Republican principles, but it has repeatedly pointed out that under the present system there is nothing to prevent distortion of those principles by any gang that manages to capture the party organization." How is the I. V. A. nonpartisan election law going to safeguard party solidarity. These laws are vicious thrusts at all party alike. Under the I. V. A. law there will be possible in this state to rear a political tyrant that will transcend anything the state has ever known. Only such a political neophyte as the Pioneer could fail to sense it.

The Tribune is not worried over the Pioneer's or Herald's views of what motives prompts its attitude. It refuses reluctantly to back state socialism in any form. If that be treason in North Dakota why make the best of it. Tosty and Jerry.

ed Sprinkle-Blow. "I meant to knock him up and now here he is."

"Who?" asked Nancy. "Who is it who has such a loud voice?"

"Voice!" exclaimed the fairyman. "It's not his voice. It's his wings. That is Loony Loutus announcing to folks that fall is coming."

"Fall!" gasped Mrs. Redbreast, "and me just getting fixed for a rest!"

"Fall!" faltered Mrs. Bluebird. "And me not properly settled yet."

"Fall!" cried everybody, pulling long faces.

Sprinkle-Blow was completely flabbergasted. Fall! And he just got done promising folks that summer should last a long, long time.

COULD HARDLY STRAIGHTEN UP.

When the kidneys are overworked or disordered and fail to throw out waste matter from the system, it causes aches, pains, lame back, swollen ankles, sore joints, lassitude, floating specks, etc. J. W. Seabrook, Chester, Pa., writes: "My kidneys and back hurt me so when I got out of bed in the morning I could hardly straighten up. Had to rub the small of my back before I could walk. I could hardly button my shoes. I haven't felt the soreness since I took Foley Kidney Pills."

MANDAN NOTES

Mr. and Mrs. Peese of San Diego California are parents of Mrs. L. Reko of Mandan and Mr. and Mrs. L. Reko of Oakes N. D. motored to Mandan and antiquists at the J. Reko home for several days.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl K. Bitting from Mandan are here from Faribault and are spending fair week with Mr. Bitting's parents. Mr. Bitting formerly of the Daily Pioneer is now news editor to the Faribault Forum.

FUNERAL HELD THIS MORNING.

The body of Mrs. Jim McCormick who died following an operation performed at the Mayo hospital Rochester Minn. has arrived in the city and was taken to the Kennedy undertaking parlor. The funeral services were held at 9 o'clock this morning from the St. Joseph Catholic church Mrs. McCormick who was 38 years old was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dan Timbrell of Sunray and the grandniece of Mrs. Johanna Stark who died a few months ago at the age of 102. The funeral of Mrs. McCormick will occur just a year to a day from that of her brother in law James J. Collins who was killed in August 1920 in a railroad accident at Zeeb Mont.

CAR ACCIDENT ON VIADUCT.

An automobile crash that wrecked two cars occurred about 8 o'clock Wednesday evening when George Kusch Sterling North Dakota driving on the left side of the street crashed into a car owned by Philip G. Lohstetter this city at the time of the eighth avenue viaduct.

According to witness Kusch driving a Ford was coming down the via duct on the left side of the street at a good rate of speed. Conal Elmes driving a Dodge touring car with Mr. and Mrs. Lohstetter as passenger had turned the corner in First street S. W. preliminary to going over the viaduct. Kusch apparently became confused and swerved still further to the left. Although the Lohstetter car was jammed against the curb to escape him the Ford crashed into the larger vehicle.

Kusch was hurled through the windshield but escaped with a few minor bruises. Mr. Lohstetter was pitched from the car but escaped injury. However both cars were badly wrecked. The engine of the Ford was jammed back into the body and the car practically demolished. The Dodge car will require several hundred dollars of repairs.

Mr. Lohstetter appealed to City Attorney J. H. Conoley for the arrest of Kusch for carelessness driving. The warrant has not been served pending a settlement out of court for damage caused.
